It represents your will to help the government pay off war costs, care for the wounded, maintain our troops abroad, finance the return to civilian life of millions of fighting men.

From every angle, you will be serving your own best interest by seeking out the nearest Victory Bond salesman. You can't buy too many or too often for your own good.

Chicken a la GI

Rep. Steve Pace is the Army GI's favorite "pin-up" man, after persuading the Quartermaster Corps to double its purchases of chickens.

If the determined Georgian has his way, the Army's plate is going to carry chicken at least twice a week—broiled, roasted, fried or fricasseed.

Pace's enthusiasm for poultry is understandable, since he hails from a belt where flocks of fat broilers are raised, and most of his constituents are farmers.

Although he works hardest on the Agricultural Committee, Pace occasionally will lift his voice in the House on international issues, such as peacetime lend-lease and proposals to grant huge loans to foreign countries.

Sixteenth Street Baptists Active

City Y.W.A. meeting was held at Sixteenth Street Baptist church last Friday evening at 7:30. Five girls, representatives from each of the Baptist churches, gave talks on mission work in various countries. After the program, the girls were served refreshments, prepared by Y.W.A. girls of the local church with the help of members of the W.M.S. Miss Sadie Garner led the group in singing.

Last Sunday evening Rev. and Mrs. Adkinson gave reports to the congregation on the convention attended in Raleigh last week.

Next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 the Sunbeam band will meet at the church.

Bowling League Opens Season

Proximity Mills bowling league got off to a good start last week, with Spinning room No. 2 defeating the Weave room, two best out of three.

Jack McQueen, manager of Spinning room team and Pinky Dyson, manager of Weave room group spent an evening of social recreation in the Proximity Y.M.C.A. game room with members of their teams, composed of men and women.

Spinning Room No. 2 and the card room played their match game on Thursday evening, with card room defeating spinning room, two best out of three. Jack Cole and Everett Stanley are managers of these teams.

Both games were closely contested, and not until the last frame of the game was the score decided. Many spectators enjoy watching these young men and women, representing their departments, participate in their favorite past time in the Y.M.C.A. bowling alleys.

Proximity Bowling alleys are under the supervision of Mr. Clarence Michael, and games may be arranged for any other department from time to time as interest may demand.

Turkey Day

Since early childhood Thanksgiving day has been a special sort of festival for each of us. The word itself brings mental pictures of family gatherings with turkey, sweet potatoes, pumpkin pie, and all the savory foods of the late fall season.

Golden corn piled high in the crib, yards full of noisy turkeys or clucking chickens, hog killing on frosty days; friends and relatives gathering for good company and good cheer; these are the good things we look forward to. These are some of the things for which we give thanks.

No festival could be more truly American than Thanksgiving Day. Though days for giving thanks have been declared from time to time in other lands, we were the first people to develop a traditional national day of thanksgiving. Our forefathers, to whom true freedom was often new, felt a keen appreciation for their comparatively meager blessings.

In this season of thanksgiving,

A firm believer in charity beginning at home, he dismisses with impatience all this talk of shipping vast quantities of foodstuffs across the ocean.

"We should feed Americans first," he asserts stoutly. Listeners declare that from the way he talks he appears to mean "second helpings."

Born in Terrell County, Ga., 53 years ago, Pace has filled a Congressional seat for 18 years. He was elected to the House back in 1927, and grateful constituents have kept him there ever since.

A graduate of the State University, he still practices law in Americus, where he hung up his shingle in 1914. With Congressional recesses becoming fewer, he admits he hasn't devoted much time to his practice recently.

Holiday Yesterday

Local mills were closed yesterday. Thanksgiving day, third shifts resuming work at 11 o'clock last night and other shifts at the regular time this morning.

Proclamation By The Governor

Whereas, the North Carolina Tuberculosis Association has designated the weeks from November 19, to Christmas, as the period of time for the sale of Tuberculosis Christmas Seals, and Whereas, the Association conducting the Seal Sale uses 95 per cent of the Seal funds for a North Carolina health program, and

Whereas, tuberculosis, as a communicable disease, took 57,000 lives in America last year, and may possibly increase in North Carolina as it has already in Europe, and

Whereas, the people of North Carolina can help to prevent such a situation by supporting this 39th annual Christmas Seal Sale, which makes possible a health program designed to protect North Carolina from the spread of this public enemy.

Now, therefore, with this in mind, I, as your Governor, call upon the citizens of North Carolina to help make possible the complete eradication of tuberculosis in our state by buying and using Christmas Seals during the weeks between November 19 and Christmas.

In witness whereof, I, R. Gregg Cherry, Governor of North Carolina, have signed and caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed hereto in our City of Raleigh, this fourteenth day of November, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and forty-five and in the one hundred and seventieth year of American Independence.

(Signed) R. Gregg Cherry, Governor

Students Present Thanksgiving Play

A play, the First Thanksgiving Day, was given by the fourth grade of Miss Agnes Cox at Cesar Cone school this week.

In observance of Book Week, Miss Rowland's third grade dramatized the story, "The Three Wishes." Taking part were Ann Wyrick, Jimmy Brady, and Clyde Kirkman.

1945 Christmas Seal Sale Now Under Way

The story of a Christmas tradition which for 39 years has carried the same health message, but which wears a different dress each year, was told Saturday by Montgomery S. Hill, Seal Sale Chairman of the Greensboro Tuberculosis Association.

Hill related the story in discussing the 1945 Christmas Seal Sale which opened this week under the auspices of the association and will continue until Dec. 25. Funds raised in the Seal Sale will be used to support the association's tuberculosis control program.

"Nearly everyone is familiar with the tuberculosis Christmas Seal," he said, "but people often comment on the fact that the Seal is different each year and ask how the design is selected. One thing about the design is always the same—the red Double-Barred Cross is prominently displayed each year. This is the emblem of the National Tuberculosis Association and its 2,500 affiliates in their Crusade for Health. In other respects the design of the Seal varies from year to year because it is the work of different artists and each gives his own interpretation to the holiday health greeting conveyed by the Seal.

"Since the same Seal is used by all 2,500 affiliates of the National Tuberculosis Association in every state of the Union, the District of Columbia and also Hawaii, Puerto Rico, Alaska, the Canal Zone and the Philippines, and since the process of producing the four-color plate in involved, the selection of the Seal is made at least a year in advance. Artists, familiar with the use of color for inexpensive reproduction, are invited to submit designs. From these designs the most outstanding is selected by a nation-wide committee of tuberculosis association executives for the next Christmas Seal."

This year's Seal was designed by Park Phipps, professor at the Art Institute of Chicago, and shows a typical American boy carrying a Christmas wreath home. Phipps, a native of Lexington, Ky., has spent most of his life in the Middle West. He is a graduate of Northwestern University and studied at the Art Institute of Chicago where he later became a member of the faculty. He has been head of the Department of Advertising and Printing Design since 1930.

Other well-known artists who have drawn the Christmas Seal include Howard Pyle, Ernest Hamlin Baker, Thomas Cleland, Rockwell Kent, Lloyd Cox, Stevan Dohanos, Dale Nichols and Spence Wilkey.

The first Seal sold in this country was designed by Miss Emily Bissell of Wilmington, Del., a welfare worker who had been asked to help a group of doctors who badly needed funds to continue their treatment of eight tuberculosis patients. In seeking a way to raise the necessary money Miss Bissell recalled that since 1904 Christmas Seals had been sold in Denmark to help needy tuberculosis children. Although no artist, she sketched a Seal bearing the message "Merry Christmas," and had several thousand printed at her own expense.

That first Seal Sale in 1907, conducted locally, was a great success. The following year the first national Seal Sale was conducted.

"The Christmas Seal," said Mr. Hill "has now become a tradition. When used on Christmas mail it signifies that the sender of the package or letter has enlisted in a great campaign against tuberculosis which once was the first cause of death in this country, but which now has dropped to seventh place as a result of an unrelenting campaign against the disease.

"Despite progress made, tuberculosis is still a dangerous enemy, killing at the rate of one person every nine minutes. The battle against tuberculosis must continue until this disease no longer threatens the health and happiness of the people of our community. Everyone can enlist in this fight by the purchase and use of Christmas Seals, which are the sole means of support of the local tuberculosis association."

Veterans' Administration Cites Need Of Victory Loan

Washington, D. C.—(Supplied by Veterans' Administration)—All wars have turned out full quotas of maimed and disabled—death and disability being just one of the by-products of victory or defeat—and this war, instead of being the exception, has turned out an even higher percentage of disabled than all other wars this Nation ever engaged in.

The very character of the fighting—on far-flung fronts ranging from the frigidities of the north to the heat and wetness of the tropical jungle—have made this more or less to be expected. Great strides in medical science have cut to a great extent the number of deaths, but have not eliminated disabilities.

There still remain, however, those thousands who bear the marks of war—who will bear those marks until the end of their time. Yet they are not the wreckage veterans of other wars because of a grateful Government which reflects the gratitude and appreciation of the American Public.

The answer to the ravages of war has been and will continue to be rehabilitation. Standing back of rehabilitation is the Victory Loan.

The Congress of the United States has made generous and flexible provisions for education and training of the veteran who is in need of it through enactment of Public Law 16 of the 78th Congress, in 1943.

To be eligible for training under this law a veteran must meet the following four requirements:

(1) He must have been in the active military or naval service on or after September 16, 1940 and prior to the termination of the present war;

(2) must have been discharged or released under conditions other than dishonorable;

(3) must have a disability incurred in or aggravated by such service for which pension is payable under laws administered by the Veterans' Administration;

(4) must be in need of vocational rehabilitation to overcome the handicap of such disability.

The selection of a general occupation, such as a machinist or motor vehicle mechanic, or of a more specialized one, such as a turret lathe operator or automobile motor analyst, will be based upon the individual veteran's education, vocational experience, abilities, personal desires and degree and type of disability.

If on-the-job training appears best to meet the needs and wishes of the veteran, the regional office will then make an agreement with a suitable industrial establishment to provide vocational training which will supply the necessary occupational information and develop the proper skills to afford the disabled person a well-rounded knowledge of, and ability to perform, all the shop operations and other tasks which are essential to meeting employment requirements in the chosen field.

The Veterans Administration will require the selected establishment not merely to put the man to work but to outline and carry out a specific course of training, the details of which will be made a part of the agreement. Careful supervision will be furnished during the entire period of training. The place of training, of course, will be dependent upon the particular employment objective selected and facilities which may be available.

All personal tools and other equipment necessary for pursuing the course of training will be furnished to the veterans by the Veterans Administration. During his training period and for two months after employability has been determined the man will receive a pension of not less than his basic disability pension. The basic disability pension generally will be increased to $92 per month or more if the veteran has dependents, on account of training, as subsistence allowance, with certain limitations when the veteran

More Than The Pilgrim Fathers

Yesterday was Thanksgiving Day. Why we have an annual Thanksgiving Day is a familiar story to us all. The Pilgrim fathers set a day aside to give thanks after a good harvest. They had suffered untold deprivations and had had a very tough time.

Our boys overseas had a tough time and made many sacrifices, but we back home have really fared very well. In fact, despite a tendency of many of us to complain about hard work and the scarcity of various things, our lot even through the darkest days of the war was far better than that of the Pilgrim fathers even after they had had a rich and bountiful harvest.

Come to think of it, we more than the Pilgrim fathers are the ones who should give thanks. We have just about everything. They had very, very little. They, however, gave reverential thanks for what they had, whereas our tendency is to complain because we do not have more.

We have just gone through a terrible ordeal mentally, but physically those of us who remained behind have lived a comparatively soft, comfortable life. Our fighting boys have won the war for us and have made it impossible for an invading force to conquer this country at least for a long, long time. They have preserved for us the opportunity for a continuation of our life of freedom. For that we should give reverential thanks.

Nature has endowed this country with untold wealth in resources. For that we should give thanks. No other people anywhere in the world have as high a standard of living as do we. For that we should give thanks.

Our blessings have been many. The question is, have we deserved them? Has our attitude been one of humility and sincerity? Have we been grateful for those things which we have for which we were not responsible?

We are very much afraid that our attitude in this country has not been one in harmony with the spirit of the true Thanksgiving; and we are very much afraid that unless we again embrace the cardinal principles of conscientious living and a desire to do our part, including a honest day's work, we may lose some of the things for which we should be grateful and thankful but which we apparently just take for granted.

Mr. H. L. Beaver has been having car trouble (or is it an automobile) Stella? We regret that she had to crawl under the car and fix "it" before she could get to work Thursday morning—no mechanics available?

Mr. J. O. Morphis, an expert hog raiser, decided he had rather have them in the frigidarium than the pen—so he got off from work to make the transfer of the animals!

There are several of the employees of this office who, in seeking a better education, are using part of their lunch period for a study of "Pig Latin". In case any readers are interested, they should see Mr. Wallace Bourne. His 12 o'clock scholars so far are Misses "Bea" Jones and Frances Lowdermilk and none other than the Dr. Morphis, better known among his close associates as "Ossie".

It seems that Miss Sutton, classified in the Nov. 9 "Have You Heard," as an old maid with all hopes vanished, saw a spark of light Friday evening when she reached home and found one dozen red roses from a certain tall, blonde sailor on furlough! "Ray," for the navy!

The Pay Roll girls are still wondering just when wedding bells will ring for Blanch Heath. She seems unusually happy these days—just flirting about like a butterfly! Could that mean that the bells have rung or will ring in the very near future, Blanch?

Wonder how our friend turkey feels today? Certainly no worse than those of us who over-indulged yesterday to satisfy our enormous appetites.

Just a reminder—Only 26 shopping days 'til Christmas.

Wonder where Mr. Carpenter finds such good-smelling tobacco. We wouldn't mind pipes around the house if they all smelled as good as his.

Sara Livengood's beaming face is due to her brother, Chester, being home from the Navy this week. He has been all over the South Pacific and has taken part in a good many naval engagements.

The transportation system in Greensboro has been giving plenty of trouble to some of our people who come by trolley from West Greensboro. It has been taking as much as an hour to get here in the morning. This has particularly affected Miss Womack and Doc Ottinger.

Miss Maness' brother, Robert, has just been discharged from the Navy, and her transportation schedule has been changed in order to get Robert to work.

Mr. J. McLean of Cone Company, New York office, and Mr. Holt of Cone Company, New Orleans, were visitors at the Print Works last week.

Mr. T. S. Horry continues to have serious difficulties with his eyes, and now appears that he will be away indefinitely.

Some of the material being shipped home from abroad by relatives of the office force who are in the Service in foreign lands have historic interest, and some of them have artistic merit, and the last one to arrive is just plain funny.

The painting of the inside of the office has finally been completed, except for a few finishing touches on the second floor. Hazel Freeze has been extra busy trying to bring the floors up to equal the cleanliness of the walls.

Employment Office

High blood pressure seems to be the latest epidemic raging in the Employment office. The most critical case being Frances (Floss) Cox. This business of watching the papers every day for the arrival of boats from Calcutta surely makes the heart beat faster. It can't be much longer, Frances! No one can sympathize more than Billie Ward. She's in a trance waiting every minute to hear that her twin brothers have landed from Italy.

With that much talked about dumb-waiter completed now, we wonder when the rating department will move upstairs in their new quarters and just which "quarter" will they occupy? Maybe they will hold open-house and invite us up for a coke.

We hope this greeting will reach Mr. Rawlins—we miss seeing him around and hope it won't be long before he will be up and about again.

A little bird told us that Mary Davis is having a birthday soon. She won't tell us the exact day but here is a Greeting anyway.

"Mary, Ted, and Mary Jo. A nice little family, you know. But the one we are thinking about today.

Is Mary—Happy Birthday!

ALLEY PATTERN

Orchids to our bowling team for winning two matches last week. Keep 'em rolling, gals! We hear "Johnny" Martin was on hand to give the girls inspiration. Was that the reason for the victory.

Minnie Wood, who chalked up a score of 128 on Wednesday night, was kept busy all day Thursday signing autographs.

Helen Wrenn and Blanche Marchison were the stars of our show on Thursday night, scoring 110 and 106 respectively.

Speaking of bowling, here's something right down that alley. We've just uncovered the secret of our bowling team! (both ladies and gents) sudden success. Seems they have some new rules that go something like this:

1. After picking out the best ball, stand in front of your favorite alley, thus giving no one a chance to bowl there.

2. Before throwing the ball, have your captain call to the attention of the bowlers your perfect stance.

3. If you miss a strike, look wise and smile.

4. If you make two strikes, calmly walk over and chalk it up, being very careful not to smile this time.

5. If you make three strikes in a row, nonchalantly light a cigarette. If you don't smoke, light a fag anyhow.

6. If you throw the ball in the gutter, grab your leg quickly and limp to the bench, growling something about slippery shoes or bad breaks, or the gutter is too close to the alley, or something.

7. If you get a railroad, study the situation carefully, meanwhile thinking of the good time you had on your vacation. Then try to make it.

8. If you have a low score, tell the captain confidentially that you did it for the purpose of getting a bigger handicap. If you haven't your bowling shoes or if you haven't your own ball remember these are also good excuses for low scores.

9. If a bowler on the opposing team makes a bum 'shot, laugh loudly and attract everybody's attention.

10. If your opponent makes a strike, sneer and talk about horseshoes and four-leaf clovers.

11. Never give the other team any credit; always talk about how funny they throw the ball.

12. When marking score, if no one is looking, mark down a few more than you made.

13. If you miss an easy spare, laugh it off and say you tried something new.

14. If you team lost the last game, point to the fellow who made a couple of bum shots and yell: "You're the fellow who lost the game." This will restore his confidence and he will appreciate your calling his attention to his weakness.

15. If you lose a couple of games, complain to the secretary about the lousy bowlers on your team—the guy that makes the most complaints is automatically elected secretary for the ensuing year.

(Mojud Singer)

From this out just call our bowling team "Pen-Up Girls". We hear they're quite versatile now—they have not only mastered the art of bowling, but are also experienced pen setter-upper.

There's never a dull moment in our office. Every Monday morning when you walk in either something new has been added or something old has been subtracted. Last week end's sacrifice was the petition between the Accounting department and the lobby.

The occupants of the new Proximity Cotton Mills office held open house all last week—posies for the ladies, cigars for the gents. We think practically all the Proximity Manufacturing staff has now inspected and thoroughly approved the building.

REWARD: For any information leading to the "capture" of dates for our frantic females for the Christmas party that is in the making. Requirements: Free, White, and 21 (or eighteen, anyway). Polish up your weapons, gals, the hunting season is on.

Blanche, did you knit your two rows last night? Wonder how long it really will take to knit a sweater at the rate of two rows per night?

Lois Rierison is patiently waiting for Uncle to send her Bob home. Here's hoping he's really on the way this time, Lois.

This "is" Headlines: The Proximity Office won two games the other night. Isn't that wonderful, so here's a little ditty from the management in memory of our proud bowlers:

Of all the girls that bowl so smart, There's none like Proximity Office. Our hearts are naught but tumbling pins.

When they bowl in our alley, Now I hope they don't go and get the big head and lost tomorrow night. (Continued on Page Four)

Star Dust

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO
By VIRGINIA VALE
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Eight cows who appear in Samuel Goldwyn's "The Kid From Brooklyn," which stars Danny Kaye, have inherited a beard that once belonged to Douglas Fairbanks. But not as a beard. They're all dolled up for the dairy maid number, in which they are assisted by the 1946 class of Goldwyn girls. The cows make their debut wearing pearl earrings, fancy hats, and artificial eyelashes. That's where the beard comes in. The property man tried stiff black paper, then pipe cleaners, with no luck. But the beard was perfect.

One appearance on the Edgar Bergen radio program was all that Anita Gordon needed to launch her on a career. Bergen signed the 15-year-old singer to a contract after her first program, and two days later 20th Century-Fox gave her a film contract.

Helmut Dantine's going to know picture-making from A to Z or know why. He's secured permission from Warner Bros. to sit in all phases of the process in "The Man Who Died Twice," while awaiting his next acting assignment.

Betty Hutton got a pleasant surprise when she opened the door of her new and fancy portable dressing room on the set of "The Stork Club." In the corner stood a new bleached walnut piano, replacing the old upright that had been installed temporarily when the dressing room was unveiled. Paramount gave it to Betty so that she could rehearse her song numbers on the set during filming.

Lulu McConnell was a star of the theater in the days of Anna Held and Lillian Russell; now, on "It Pays to Be Ignorant," she's the most insulted woman in America—and loves it! She thought she was done when bronchitis ruined a good singing voice, but that croaky voice became one of her biggest assets. She'd retired when Tom Howard enlisted her for "Ignorant."

Phillip Terry headed for New York after finishing his role in "George White's Scandals," his third RKO role. He's one of the few Hollywood players who got his theatrical schooling abroad in London, and touring the British provinces in stock. He's done all right in Hollywood—played romantic leads in "Music in America" and "Pan-Americana" at RKO, and did "The Lost Weekend" and "To Each His Own" at his home lot, Paramount. But an awful lot of moviegoers will just identify him as he's Joan Crawford's husband.

Producer Leo McCarey did a nice thing—picked 10 girls from the extra ranks in "The Bells of St. Mary's," to play the nuns in a parochial school, hoping that their scenes with Bing Crosby and Ingrid Bergman would start them on real screen careers.

Joan Crawford's new picture, "Mildred Pierce," is the kind that a lot of women are going to love. And it's well come-back for the valiant Miss Crawford; in her lexicon there's certainly no such word as "fail," no matter how bad the breaks.

We hear that Paramount has sworn affidavits to prove that the voice you'll hear as Dorothy Lamour's in "Masquerade in Mexico" is really hers. Seems that, instead of its being a contralto, as it's been for the last eight years, it's suddenly become an operatic high soprano, discovered by Director Mitchell Leisen. B. bat used to be her limit; now, they say, she hits a D 10 notes higher.

Plumbing and Heating Equipment Survives Atomic Bomb Blast

Skies were clear over Hiroshima when a Superfortress dropped the first atomic bomb in warfare. Smoke, dust, and debris from the explosion rose 40,000 feet. Shown in the picture are the remains of Hiroshima as they are being viewed today by American occupation troops.

The only identifiable items of household equipment that survived the blast are radiators, pipes, and a tiled bathtub complete with faucets. The latter was in a barbershop. The radiators were not broken, warped, crushed, or cracked by the terrific explosion which flattened houses for ten miles around.

"General," he said in his politest tone, "wouldn't it be better to land a flying boat in the water?"

"Of course, Commander," reddened the general, "what was I thinking of?"

He made a safe water landing, and rising from the wheel remarked, "I want to thank you, Commander, for the tactful way you called my attention to my incredible blunder." Upon saying which, the star-studded gentleman opened the cabin door and calmly stepped into the bay!

Gov's Talk Of Hugh Profits Is 'Cockeyed'

Manufacturers Say 24% Wage Increase Would Send Prices Soaring

The statement by unidentified "Administration economists" that manufacturers' profits after taxes in 1946 will be $6.3 billion and that wages could be increased 24 per cent without reducing profits or increasing prices, is "the most cockeyed business forecast ever made by presumably responsible persons."

Making this assertion, Walter B. Weisenburger, executive vice president of the National Association of Manufacturers, recalled that President Truman recently "repudiated one of his administrators for irresponsible statements about wages and prices," and declared:

"The President would be well advised to take equally drastic action in connection with those guilty of this latest nonsense."

The wage paid to the veteran, plus the portion of his pension added to his basic disability pension for maintenance may not exceed the amount the employer is paying to a qualified beginning journeyman in the occupation for which the veteran is being trained.

No course of training can exceed four years in length, nor can any training under this legislation be given beyond six years after the termination of the present war.

This type of training costs money—money for the training or re-education of the disabled, handicapped veteran—money for his support and for support of his dependents.

Reconverting Insurance

The Veterans administration has just recently ruled that veterans of World War II who have permitted their National Service Life Insurance to lapse and desire to reinstate it may do so by paying two premiums and submitting evidence that he is in good health if the insurance lapses within six months after he is discharged.

If the veteran has been out of service more than six months he may reinstate the insurance at any time within three months by showing his health is as good as when the insurance lapsed and paying premiums for two months.

If the veteran is unable to keep the full amount of insurance he carried while in service, he may reinstate and continue any part of it in amounts from $1,000 to $10,000 in multiples of $500 upon payment of two monthly premiums. Congress has recently extended the five-year level premium policies issued on or before December 31, 1945, and not converted to permanent policies before that date, for an additional three years. Such policies issued after that date have five years to run. In either case, the policies, at their expiration date, must be converted to one of the permanent plans offered by the Veterans administration: ordinary life, 20-payment life or 30-payment life. If national service life insurance is allowed to lapse after being converted into permanent form, the veteran must pay all monthly premiums in arrears with interest at 5 per cent, and prove his good health. Converted national service life insurance has a cash value and may also be used for security. The five-year term policy as extended does not have a cash value.

Q. My husband was killed in action. Am I eligible for medical care? Is our daughter? If so, what is the proper procedure?—Widow, Gloucester, Va.

A. The Veterans administration says neither the widow nor members of the family are eligible for medical care, unless the widow is pregnant at the time of the veteran's death. The widow, however, is entitled to a pension of $50 per month, and the daughter $15 per month, if under 18 years old, for life or until the widow remarries. She is also entitled to gratuity pay of six months of the soldier's pay, and insurance, if she is the beneficiary in the soldier's policy.
